

SOVIET AERIAL ARMADAS INFLICT DEVASTATION AMONG RANKS OF FLEEING NAZIS IN WHITE RUSSIA

Russian Tanks Crashing Through Last German Defenses
Before Latvia—Are Only 100 Miles from Frontier of Germany — Pursue Enemy in Three-Pronged Offensive.

MOSCOW, July 5.—(INS)—Soviet aerial armadas inflicted new devastation today among the ranks of fleeing Nazi forces continuing to drop back before onrushing Red army columns smashing westward across White Russia toward the borders of Latvia and the Reich itself.

An undated dispatch in the London Evening Standard said that Russian tanks were crashing through the last German defenses before the Baltic state and were only 100 miles from the frontier of Germany.

A dispatch by the Nazi agency DNB admitted that the Germans had evacuated the rail center of Kowel, in pre-war Poland 75 miles southeast of Brest-Litovsk.

The Russians pursued the Germans in a three-pronged offensive against the vital Dvinsk-Warsaw rail line and rolled to within seven miles of the Latvian border.

Soviet planes roared ahead of advancing Red army ground forces to cut up the German hordes fleeing back toward their own frontier. Russian planes constantly hammered the battered Nazis. German trucks which lined highways leading away from the front were left in flames as a result of bombing and strafing attacks.

After smashing beyond captured Polotsk, one Russian column struck to within less than 35 miles of the Dvinsk-Warsaw railroad.

ARMED FORCES SUPPLY MOST BRIDEGROOMS

A Total of 77 Licenses Are Issued During The Month of June

RECORD LOW NUMBER

DOYLESTOWN, July 5.—June, long a month associated with weddings slipped terribly last month in Bucks County. Only 77 marriage licenses were issued making it the poorest sixth-month on record in the county.

Fifty-three of the licenses were granted to defense workers, while 14 were issued to soldiers, seven to sailors, one to a marine and two to members of the air corps.

There were 9 farmers, 6 school teachers, an assistant post-mistress, 4 telephone operators and just 1 out of 77 male applicants was unemployed.

SGT. SCHMIDT, HERO OF THIS WAR, WITH 210 "JAPS" TO CREDIT, URGES ALL TO BUY BONDS AND HOLD UNTIL MATURITY; BIG RALLY HERE

Another capacity crowd packed into the Grand Theatre Monday night on the occasion of the Fifth War Bond rally. The rally in which the Bristol and Grand theatres co-operated, netted, according to Edward Lynn, manager of the Grand, a sale of $50,000 in bonds.

The highlight of the rally was the personal appearance of Sgt. Albert Schmidt, U. S. A., Philadelphia, credited with killing 210 Japanese in the present global conflict. But it was a terrible price which Sgt. Schmidt paid for having wiped out those "Japs." His left eye was so severely injured that it had to be removed. The sight of his right eye is totally gone. He was hit by a "Jap" grenade. Both of his feet were infected, he suffered blood poisoning up to his hips, his left shoulder was injured, he suffered four hemorrhages of the head, and suffered other injuries.

Sgt. Schmidt was highly honored on his visit here. He arrived early Monday evening, accompanied by a companion. He was the guest of honor at dinner of Edward Lynn who was host to a party of 10 at the Keystone Hotel. In the party were: Schmidt, and his companion; Mr. Lynn; former U. S. Senator, Joseph R. Grundy; Burgess Jacob C. Schmidt; J. Edward Bloessinger, chairman in Bucks County of the War Bond Drive; Mr. and Mrs. J. Leslie Kilooyne, W. Edward Lynn; Mr. E. Paul Patton, chairman of War Bond Drive in Bensalem Township.

Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 352, American Legion, presented a medal to Harry Robinson, Newportville, as the boy having sold the most bonds during a specified period. Robinson, aged 16, sold $3,575 in bonds during the week previous to the rally.

Robinson was called to the stage and had the honor of having the medal pinned on him by Sgt. Schmidt who thanked the lad for his efforts. The presentation was made on behalf of the Legion by

July 4th Very Quietly Observed In This Area

The anniversary of Independence Day was quietly observed in this section yesterday.

A number of families or groups celebrated the holiday picnic style, enjoying dinners at nearby parks or streams, or on their own lawns. There being no fireworks sold there were but few noted in the section, some individuals using up small surpluses from the previous year.

Traffic was light on most thoroughfares, but individuals traveling by buses and trains during the week-end and holiday found conditions very crowded.

Bathing beaches in this area were quite popular with people of all ages.

OPINIONS HANDED DOWN BY COURT

Sessions of Miscellaneous Court Held at Doylestown on Monday

4 DIVORCES GRANTED

DOYLESTOWN, July 5.—Important opinions were handed down and four divorces were granted Monday at a session of miscellaneous civil court, with Judges Hiram H. Keller and Calvin S. Boyer on the bench.

Judge Boyer handed down an opinion in the appeal from the refusal of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board to grant a transfer of the liquor license of Pauline M. Loftus, Trevese. Judge Boyer dismissed the appeal and refused the transfer, directing that the order of the Liquor Control Board be affirmed.

Mrs. Loftus was the holder of a restaurant license for a restaurant located on the south side of the railroad tracks in Trevese since July, 1942. In September, 1943, she applied to the Liquor Control Board for a transfer of the license to a new restaurant on the north side of the railroad tracks in the same village, which was refused by the Board, whereas she took an appeal.

The important legal question, on which the lower courts are equally divided, was whether the Board, or

"Perfect Little Goose" To Be Staged Saturday

On Saturday night at eight o'clock, the Youth Fellowship and Young Adult Groups of the Bensalem Methodist Church will combine their stagecraft to present their annual festival play at the church social hall. This year the groups will produce a three-act play entitled "The Perfect Little Goose," by Lida Larrimore, who also is the author of "The Littlest Bridesmaid."

The cast will be the following: Miss Sarah Lovelace, Hazel Turton; Hannah, her maid, Mildred Vansant; Mr. Randall Meredith, Henry Vansant; Miss Annabelle Lovelace, Doris Yeagie; Katie, maid in the Meredith home, Edna Bates; "Teddy" Travers, "Billy" Vansant; Marjory Meredith, Jean Yeagie; Mr. Bryon Fleming, Ralph Bates; Johnson, the detective, Charles Inglin.

Following the play, which will last 1½ hours, ice cream and home made cake will be served.

Keller's Cafe, Mill St., Is Damaged by Blaze

Fire at Keller's Cafe, 225 Mill St., this morning at 3.39, did damage to the extent of approximately $1,000 according to the proprietor, John Keller.

Mr. Keller was awakened by the playing of the juke box. When he made his way to the bar-room he found it filled with smoke, and flame was emanating from the section near the juke box, the refrigerator and bar.

Bristol Consolidated Fire Co., and Bristol Fire Co., No. 1, were summoned, and fought the blaze with water and chemicals.

The damage states Mr. Keller included that to the juke box, the refrigerator, the bar and some liquid stock. Walls and ceiling were also damaged by smoke.

Members of the Keller family left their living quarters for a time until all danger of the blaze spreading was past. The heat broke two large display windows at the front of the building.

Sunday School Aids In Fifth War Loan Drive

At Zion Lutheran Sunday School, on Sunday, war bonds were presented to the church.

Charles Bigelow, Norfolk, Va. (U. S. M. training), presented a $100 bond from the classes; Eleanor Schetz, a bond from Mrs. Schrenk's class; and Winifred Margerum a bond from Mrs. Veigel's class. By the special offerings in each class every Sunday the school has purchased bonds in each drive.

FINDING OF WOMAN'S BODY IN RIVER CLIMAXES SERIES OF INCIDENTS WHICH ARE BELIEVED TO BE CIRCUMSTANTIAL

Body of Mrs. Marietta Yohn, 29, South Fork, Found Floating in Water below Mill St. Wharf—Had Previously
Been Taken To Her Home by Police and Later Reported Safe in Telephone Call to Police Headquarters.

A series of incidents culminating in the finding of the body of a woman floating in the Delaware River on Monday afternoon has created a mystery which police are endeavoring to solve.

The body was identified as that of Marietta L. Yohn, 29, 112 Maple street, South Fork, Pa. The Bristol address of the victim is given as 254 Radcliffe street. According to Donald Glass, of the same Bristol address, who identified the body, Mrs. Yohn's husband is in the U. S. Army.

The body was seen floating in the water below the Mill street wharf at about 3.20 by a man and a woman in a boat. They called to William Jefferies, Garden street, who aided in bringing the corpse ashore and then notified police. Coroner J. Alfred Rigby was summoned.

Mrs. Yohn was fully clothed except for shoes and stockings. Police were told that she did not wear stockings but when last seen had on high heel shoes.

The body was taken to the Molden morgue. A certificate of accidental drowning was issued by Coroner Rigby, according to the police.

Mrs. Yohn wore a red and white figured dress and had a wrist watch on her right wrist. The watch had stopped at 12.30. She was reported to have had a necklace and a pocketbook when last seen alive. These have not been found, nor her shoes.

The woman was formerly an employee of the Rohm & Haas Company but left a few days ago and then is said to have gone to her home, returning here a few days ago and again taking up her residence at the Radcliffe street address about June 29th.

The woman's father's name is given as John W. McCloskey, of the same South Fork address, and her mother is said to be dead.

The circumstances leading up to the finding of the body and which has thrown a veil of mystery about the woman's death, are these:

Saturday evening police apprehending Mrs. Yohn along Highway 13, south of Mill street, took her to her Bristol residence in the radio patrol car and instructed her to remain at home. They are of the opinion that she had been drinking.

EXECUTION MOVIE

According to Pietro Caruso, former Fascist police chief of Rome and now a prisoner in Allied hands, Mussolini had a film made of the execution of his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, and other members of the Fascist Grand Council sentenced to death for alleged betrayal of Fascism. It appears that Ciano, Marshal Emilio de Bono and two others were shot to death from behind by their executioners.

Caruso's story goes that Ciano lost his nerve after his sentence and begged to be allowed to communicate with Hitler. The telegram was acknowledged with a curt reply to the effect that "Der Fuehrer has no concern in the matter." It is further asserted that Ciano had to be carried to the place of execution and, shrinking away from the first shot, was killed with a second bullet.

Both Mussolini's and Hitler's uncompromising attitude in the instance of Count Ciano's execution, however grimly it may strike the outside world, clearly is in keeping with the heartless and soulless tradition of Axis dictatorship. It is an attitude that has officially been impressed on the rank and file of master mob organization. Fascism is only a lingering political blight in Italy, but among the Nazis a steel-like cynicism still prevails.

The execution of Count Ciano under the personal direction of his father-in-law may be a preview of Axis things to come when the Nazis start turning on themselves in the realization that their cause is wholly lost.

STALIN ADMITS IT

That America has played an important role in helping Russia win victories is well known, but Americans have been so modest that they have thought first of the fact that it were not for Russia's gallant fight against the Germans after the Reich invaded the Soviet Union, the Allies would have a difficult time defeating the Axis.

Premier Stalin is not unimpressed of the part which this country played in enabling him to resist the Axis and even begin a drive toward Berlin, but no Americans have heard of his admitting it. In a statement given to Eric Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Stalin said:

"American business and American labor have done a remarkable job of production for the war. American agriculture also has performed unusually well. American machines of war and American food have contributed to the successes of the Red Army and its victories. The United States government has played a major role in the development and co-ordination of this production and also in fostering co-operation between our two countries."

A famous tenor who flirted with the Axis is not permitted to sing for American and British troops in Rome, and this prohibition also applies to those who sing basso profundo, baritone or falsetto.

on appeal, the court, may use its discretion in granting or refusing a transfer. The Bucks county court held that it could refuse the transfer for adequate cause.

The court, having heard evidence for and against the transfer, refused to grant the transfer on the following grounds:

1—That the applicant had conducted the present restaurant in an illegal manner so as to constitute a public nuisance.

2—She did not conduct it honestly as a restaurant but as an "open saloon" in which the furnishing of food was a mere disguise of the real purpose.

3—That the present restaurant has been a menace to the welfare, peace and morals of the public.

4—That the transfer is objected to by reputable citizens on the north side of the tracks on the Judge Boyer also handed down an opinion in the case of Louise M. Ebe against Mabel L. Jones, both of Buckingham township.

The court filed the Chancellor's Adjudication in a suit in equity to enjoin the defendant from interfering with the plaintiff's driveway and easement across her land and to compel her to restore it to its original condition after she had destroyed it by plowing it up and cultivating it.

Judge Boyer, sitting as Chancellor, found in favor of the plaintiff and entered a decree nisi enjoining and restraining the defendant as prayed for and directed her to restore the driveway to its original condition.

The Chancellor found that an easement by prescription existed on open and adverse use by the plaintiff and his predecessors for more than 21 years—to wit, a period of 60 or more years.

FLEETWINGS NINE HANDS DEFEAT TO ROHM & HAAS TEAM

Airplane Builders Increase Their Hold On Third Place

FINAL SCORE IS 11 TO 3

Chemical Mixers Lose 20th Straight Game of The Season

TRANTON INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE
Schedule for Tonight
Eastern Aircraft - Rohm & Haas
(Staple Beach field, 6.15 p. m.)

Scoring five runs in both the first and fourth innings, the Fleetwings team handed Rohm and Haas its 20th straight loss of the Trenton Industrial League Monday evening at the Bristol high school field. The triumph enabled the aircrafters to increase its hold on third place.

Featuring the first five-run rally was a home run from the bat of "Jim" D'Ascendis. The four-base knock came with a pair of runners on base and was a line drive to left field which Ritter got his hands on but could not hold.

Ray Uhl went the route on the mound for the winners and gave the chemical mixers six hits, two of which went both to Ritter and Hetherington. Jess Crossdale and Joe Antonelli raised for the Maple Beach aggregation with Antonelli doing a fine job of relief pitching, the Fleetwings getting but one run off his delivery.

Mrs. Coffey, who is now visiting with her father, will accompany him to Alaska.

John Patent, a boy living along Cathill road, near Sellersville, was overcome by fumes leaking from a refrigerator while visiting at the home of a neighbor a few nights ago.

Patent earlier in the evening had come to the home of his neighbor, Robert Souder, at whose home the leak occurred. The boy was revived by Sellersville firemen, and later was given treatment by a physician.

Firemen carried the refrigerator from the house.

2nd Lt. Ellen M. Ashbridge, of the U. S. Army Nursing Corps, arrived in the United States Saturday after serving two years in New Guinea with the 171st Station Hospital. Eight members of the Nursing Corps group to which Lt. Ashbridge was attached, returned to the states.

Lt. Ashbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Ashbridge, of Holcoing, telephoned her parents yesterday from the Pacific coast, that she was on her way to Camp Upton, L. I., and then home for a well-earned furlough.

At Burpee Memorial Playground the 1944 play season was officially opened Saturday, with nearly 100 youngsters on hand, the largest opening-day turnout in years.

An hour before the opening hour and before the new director, Miss Boris Jane Hobensack, could locate the key to the new field house, there was a line of youngsters waiting for some play instruction.

Although the trustees of the playground have been unable to secure labor to put the grounds into the shape they would like to see the place, an effort is being made to get the new layout ready before another week goes by.

A new sliding board has been added to the playground equipment this year.

One member of council reported he had been informed by William Clayton, Langhorne R. D., health officer for lower Bucks County, that the state would take over administration of the health laws in Hulmeville borough if the councilman body cared to make such arrangements.

Bills approved for payment included: fees for auditing borough books, $15; Philadelphia Electric Co., current, $62.29; George Dick, stamps, commissions, etc., $7.74; Langhorne Water Co., $6.00; Mr. Pickering, survey of memorial park, $18. Total $119.95.

Finding of Woman's Body Climaxes Series of Incidents

She had requested that she be taken to a hotel, but this the police refused to do.

Sometime after midnight, Officer Murphy, patrolling Mill street near the Grand Theatre, was informed by John Patterson, Bath street, and John Yeagle, Swain street, of an incident occurring at Mill street

Have You A Room To Rent?

We Have a Victory Worker Ready to Move In

The production front is just as important to victory as the fighting front. In order to keep up production of Plexiglas, Lethane, Primal, Lykopen and other vital war materials, we must bring in workers from outside areas—and they must have living quarters.

boat wharf. Murphy telephoned to police headquarters, giving the facts as told to him by Patterson and Yeagle, and the officers in the radio patrol car were dispatched to the scene, Patterson and Yeagle going there to meet them.

Patterson and Yeagle told the officers that they were in the vicinity of Mill and Radcliffe streets when they heard a noise resembling the noise of the motor of a motorboat. They went to the wharf and found two men whom they did not know sitting in an automobile. One of the men was in the uniform of either the Coastguard or a member of the Merchant Marine. They talked with the strangers and discussed the noise. In the conversation the strangers said that they did not know what the noise was but that a short time before a woman had been on the wharf but that she had disappeared.

The two Bristol men requested the two strangers to remain at the scene until they summoned police. When Patterson, Yeagle and the police returned to the dock and met they found that the strangers had gone.

The two officers then in the police radio car were not the same two who had taken Mrs. Yohn to her home earlier during the evening but they had been acquainted with the details of this incident, and while patrolling had seen the woman standing on Radcliffe street.

After the incident at the boat wharf was reported they went to the Radcliffe street address and inquired if the woman was at home. They were informed by the man in charge of the house that Mrs. Yohn was not at home, and that he did not know where she was at the present time. He was informed of what had transpired at the Mill street wharf.

The officers made a search of the wharf but found nothing unusual. Several hours later the desk man at police headquarters received a telephone call and were informed that "the woman is all right." The informant did not give his name.

The police dismissed the affair as one of the many similar ones which come to their attention in the routine of their duty, and the case, so far as they were concerned was ended, until the body was found Monday afternoon.

After an investigation, however, police are of the opinion that the woman accidentally fell into the water and drowned.

Prices and Sizes of Farms Show Increase

Things have not skyrocketed in this war as in the last.

"I don't think people are buying farms with the intent of speculating to any extent," he stated, "but I imagine the purchasing will be greater after the war by people looking for something to do."

Mertz said some veterans were known to have gone into the agricultural industry since their discharge from military service.

A report from the Agriculture Department indicated that the average family-sized farms currently being acquired approximated 88 acres, a gain over the 1940 acre average of 86.3.

There is no ceiling price on farm land, the Department pointed out, and the market is not great enough to necessitate one. The most prosperous and expensive farms are located in the Franklin County area, it was added.

The Agriculture Department's Bureau of Animal Industry cautioned farmers to guard against letting food spoil due to improper refrigeration.

Approximately 1,000 pounds of meat was made unfit for consumption as a result of the tornado in McKeesport, it said, and another $3000 worth of meat was lost in Allegheny County.

Secretary Miles Horst reported that Pennsylvania livestock and poultry production during 1943 placed Pennsylvania favorably among the ten highest ranking states.

"It is encouraging to note that in values Pennsylvania ranks higher than in numbers for chickens, turkeys, dairy cows, horses and colts," he pointed out. "This indicates that our farmers are favored by nearness to good urban markets and that they endeavor to produce quality livestock and poultry."

The $35,000,000 value of chickens ranked the state third while the $9,961,000 fowl raised took sixth place. Keystone farmers drew the sixth position in cattle value and tenth in number.

Six courses in dairy husbandry have been scheduled by the Pennsylvania State College for training Pennsylvania farmers to fill 29 test vacancies in the dairy herd improvement association.

The two-weeks schools will be held at the college starting July 5, August 23, October 11, January 3, February 28 and May 2. Studies will include feeding, care and breeding of dairy cattle and the production of dairy feed crops.

Armed Forces Supply Most Bridegrooms

The average age of the male applicants was 25 years while the female applicants average 24. There were 11 divorcees among the applicants and 19 had been married before. There was very little disparity in ages of the applicants last month.

Approximately 70 percent of the applicants were non-residents of Bucks county, most of the applicants coming from New Jersey and Philadelphia, although the 24 members of the armed forces came from eleven different states.

During June last year there were 106 licenses granted. In June, 1940, there were but 86 licenses issued, and that was a "new low" up until June of this year. The good old June ended back in 1939 when a total of 293 licenses were issued in one month.

"We expect to keep going as usual for the duration, but watch business step up after peace has been declared," Deputy Clerk of Orphans' Court Joseph Keating remarked. "You can't expect to have business up to normal with nearly all the physically fit applicants in the armed forces."

Sgt. Schmidt Urges All To Buy and Hold War Bonds

Robinson, highly thrilled at having Schmidt pin the medal on thanked the audience and the Bracken Post. Then brushing his hand across his forehead he said "Phew."

Manager Lynn introduced Mrs. John Leslie Kilcoyne, chairman of the bond drive in Lower Bucks County, as "the spark-plug of the bond drives in this area." Lynn explained that Mrs. Kilcoyne is the one who does the work behind the scenes in the drives, and he highly complimented her upon her untiring efforts. "She works night and day," said Mr. Lynn.

In her reply Mrs. Kilcoyne, stepping to the microphone, said that she deeply appreciated and thanked the public for its fine co-operation in this and all of the other drives. "I get tired sometimes," she said, "But then when I think of your boys who are over there and when I think of those who will probably never come back, I decide that I will stick to the work until it is over." She said she regretted that Bristol has not as yet made its quota but that she hoped the mark would be reached during the closing days of the campaign.

Mrs. E. Paul Patton spoke briefly stating her district of Bensalem Township is doing "fairly well." "We have sold something around a half million dollars or so," Mrs. Patton expressed her appreciation for the work of the juniors. "I like to think that when we are buying bonds we are helping to keep the families of those who do not come back."

J. Edward Bloessinger told of the value of war bonds as an investment and how the purchaser gets four dollars back for every three he spends. He asked for a continuance of the good work on the part of those in this area.

Sgt. Schmidt was assisted to the stage by Burgess Jacob C. Schmidt, who escorted the sergeant to the microphone. The Bracken Post color guard was grouped upon the stage and the Cadets stood at attention in the aisles of the theatre in the form of the letter "V."

Schmidt spoke little of his personal experiences in the war except to enumerate his injuries and the loss of his sight. He pleaded for the purchase of bonds and the writing of letters to the boys. He told he has visited almost every state in the union promoting the sale of bonds, and said: "I went over early in the war and I think I did a fairly good job. Now I'm asking you people to buy bonds and to write to those boys over there."

Sgt. Schmidt severely criticized those who are buying bonds and then turning them in before they mature. "I feel as though I would like to be behind a door in the post office with a big club, and when people come there to turn in their bonds I would knock them over the head. These kind of people don't help anyone."

At the conclusion of Sgt. Schmidt's talk Edward Lynn announced that after Sgt. Schmidt's return from the war he had married and that four weeks ago Albert Schmidt, Jr., was born. Then Mr. Lynn presented to Sgt. Schmidt as a gift from the Grand Theatre a war bond made payable to Albert Schmidt, Jr. This was a complete surprise to Sgt. Schmidt and he showed his deep appreciation.

Previous to the program in the theatre Barnard's Music Studio's pupils rendered orchestral selections. The Cadets played outside of the theatre, and two professional entertainers "Ray and His Pal Deny Dugan", a ventriloquist, and "The Amazing Magician" mystified the audience.

It was announced by Edward Lynn that Sgt. Schmidt has written a book of his experiences and that the story is to be depicted on the screen.

PRICES AND SIZES OF FARMS SHOW INCREASE

Further Upward Trend Predicted by Farm Security Administration

OTHER FARM NOTES

By Suzanne Flick (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, July 5.—(INS)—The price and size of the average Pennsylvania farm have increased since the war began, the Farm Security Administration disclosed today and predicted the upward trend would continue in peacetime.

Carlson F. Mertz, State Director, said "Land prices have gone up 23 per cent in a general way throughout the State since 1940 and are still going up."

Former Resident Recalls An Unusual Incident

Miss Annie Ardrey, a former resident of Bristol, now of Saratoga Lake, N. Y., was a guest on Sunday and Monday of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Ardrey, of Radcliffe street, Miss Ardrey is staying temporarily in Philadelphia, caring for her father, Thomas S. Ardrey who is ill.

While visiting here, and upon being informed of an item concerning the late Jack London which appeared in a recent "Stroller" item in The Bristol Courier, Miss Ardrey recalled an incident which occurred a number of years ago while she was a resident here.

She states that as she was feeding the birds on the lawn of her home, early one morning, a young man halted on the sidewalk. "You're feeding the birds, why not feed me?" he queried. "Why, you don't look hungry," was Miss Ardrey's reply. The young man assured her that he was, and that he was refused food at a home nearby. Invited into the Ardrey home, the young man relished the food set before him. "He didn't look like a tramp. He wore a clean, white sweater, and his teeth had been well cared for on all appearances. But his shoes were quite worn," commented Miss Ardrey. "I inquired why he was tramping about in that manner, and he told me a story, which I later believed he made upon the spot, about some money difficulties at home. I insisted that he permit me to write to his mother, assuring her he was alright. He gave me a name and address, but the letter I wrote was returned. There was no such address."

"About 20 years later, as I glanced at a magazine article and saw the face of a man, I said at once 'That's the young man I fed years ago'. His face was so striking you couldn't forget it. The picture was of Jack London and the article told of his travels."

Although Miss Ardrey says she did not verify the fact that it was London who was in Bristol, she had since been told that he had been here and was picked up by police from a freight train. She and her relatives here are of the opinion that London was released from the police station early in the morning after a night's lodging, and was searching for breakfast when he saw Miss Ardrey feeding the birds.

ARMED FORCES SUPPLY MOST BRIDEGROOMS

A Total of 77 Licenses Are Issued During The Month of June

RECORD LOW NUMBER

DOYLESTOWN, July 5.—June, long a month associated with weddings slipped terribly last month in Bucks County. Only 77 marriage licenses were issued making it the poorest sixth-month on record in the county.

Fifty-three of the licenses were granted to defense workers, while 14 were issued to soldiers, seven to sailors, one to a marine and two to members of the air corps.

There were 9 farmers, 6 school teachers, an assistant post-mistress, 4 telephone operators and just 1 out of 77 male applicants was unemployed.

SGT. SCHMIDT, HERO OF THIS WAR, WITH 210 "JAPS" TO CREDIT, URGES ALL TO BUY BONDS AND HOLD UNTIL MATURITY; BIG RALLY HERE

Another capacity crowd packed into the Grand Theatre Monday night on the occasion of the Fifth War Bond rally. The rally in which the Bristol and Grand theatres co-operated netted, according to Edward Lynn, manager of the Grand, a sale of $50,000 in bonds.

The highlight of the rally was the personal appearance of Sgt. Albert Schmidt, U. S. A., Philadelphia, credited with killing 210 Japanese in the present global conflict. But it was a terrible price which Sgt. Schmidt paid for having wiped out those "Japs." His left eye was so severely injured that it had to be removed. The sight of his right eye is totally gone. He was hit by a "Jap" grenade. Both of his feet were infected, he suffered blood poisoning up to his hips, his left shoulder was injured, he suffered four hemorrhages of the head, and suffered other injuries.

Sgt. Schmidt was highly honored on his visit here. He arrived early Monday evening, accompanied by a companion. He was the guest of honor at dinner of Edward Lynn who was host to a party of 19 at the Keystone Hotel. In the party were Schmidt, and his companion; Mr. Lynn; former U. S. Senator, Joseph R. Grundy; Burgess Jacob C. Schmidt; J. Edward Bloessinger, chairman in Bucks County of the War Bond Drive; Mr. and Mrs. J. Leslie Kilcoyne, W. Edward Lynn; Mrs. E. Paul Patton, chairman of War Bond Drive in Bensalem Township.

Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, presented a medal to Harry Robinson, Newportville, as the boy having sold the most bonds during a specified period. Robinson, aged 10, sold $3,575 in bonds during the week previous to the rally.

Robinson was called to the stage and had the honor of having the medal pinned on him by Sgt. Schmidt who thanked the lad for his efforts. The presentation was made on behalf of the Legion by

HULMEVILLE COUNCIL HAS BRIEF MEETING

Discuss Tax and Assessment Questions With Assessor, Tax Collector

ALSO HEALTH AFFAIRS

HULMEVILLE, July 5.—The meeting of Hulmeville borough council on Monday evening was brief. The session, in the town hall, was attended by President Norman Davis, Samuel J. Hillick, Walter Fry, Reginald Webb and George Bilger.

Also attending the session were Burgess Leon R. Comly, assessor; Louis Barton, and tax collector George M. Dicken. The latter two with the councilmen, discussed tax arrears, assessment questions, etc. A special meeting is planned to consider assessments and taxes outstanding. Minutes were read by Frank Forker, secretary.

Acknowledgment was received from Jesse W. Soby, American Legion, for Memorial Day donation. The treasury balance as reported by the borough treasurer, Miss Grace H. Hillick, to the secretary is $563.87.

Burgess Comly reported on the matter of securing material for repairing some thoroughfares in the borough, he stating that material can be secured without priority for such repairs. Arrangements are to

July 4th Very Quietly Observed In This Area

The anniversary of Independence Day was quietly observed in this section yesterday.

A number of families or groups celebrated the holiday picnic style, enjoying dinners at nearby parks or streams, or on their own lawns.

There being no fireworks sold there were but few noted in the section, some individuals using up small surpluses from the previous year.

Traffic was light on most thoroughfares, but individuals traveling by buses and trains during the week-end and holiday found conditions very crowded.

Bathing beaches in this area were quite popular with people of all ages.

OPINIONS HANDED DOWN BY COURT

Sessions of Miscellaneous Court Held at Doylestown on Monday

4 DIVORCES GRANTED

DOYLESTOWN, July 5.—Important opinions were handed down and four divorces were granted Monday at a session of miscellaneous civil court, with Judges Hiram H. Keller and Calvin S. Boyer on the bench.

Judge Boyer handed down an opinion in the appeal from the refusal of the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board to grant a transfer of the liquor license of Pauline M. Loftus, Trevese. Judge Boyer dismissed the appeal and refused the transfer, directing that the order of the Liquor Control Board be affirmed.

Mrs. Loftus was the holder of a restaurant license for a restaurant located on the south side of the railroad tracks in Trevese since July, 1942. In September, 1943, she applied to the Liquor Control Board for a transfer of the license to a new restaurant on the north side of the railroad tracks in the same village, which was refused by the Board, whereas she took an appeal.

The important legal question, on which the lower courts are equally divided, was whether the Board, or

"Perfect Little Goose" To Be Staged Saturday

On Saturday night at eight o'clock, the Youth Fellowship and Young Adult Groups of the Bensalem Methodist Church will combine their stagedraft to present their annual festival play at the church social hall. This year the groups will produce a three-act play entitled "The Perfect Little Goose," by Lida Larrimore, who also is the author of "The Littlest Bridemaid."

The cast will be the following: Miss Sarah Lovelace, Hazel Turton; Hannah, her maid, Mildred Vansant; Mr. Randall Meredith, Henry Vansant; Miss Annabelle Lovelace, Doris Yeagie; Katie, maid in the Meredith home, Edna Bates; "Teddy" Travers, "Billy" Vansant; Mary Meredith, Jean Yeagie; Mr. Bryon Fleming, Ralph Bates; Johnson, the detective, Charles Inglin.

Following the play, which will last 1 1/2 hours, ice cream and home made cake will be served.

Keller's Cafe, Mill St., Is Damaged by Blaze

Fire at Keller's Cafe, 225 Mill St., this morning at 3:30, did damage to the extent of approximately $1,000 according to the proprietor, John Keller.

Mr. Keller was awakened by the playing of the juke box. When he made his way to the bar-room he found it filled with smoke, and flame was emanating from the section near the juke box, the refrigerator and bar.

Bristol Consolidated Fire Co., and Bristol Fire Co., No. 1, were summoned, and fought the blaze with water and chemicals.

The damage states Mr. Keller included that to the juke box, the refrigerator, the bar and some liquid stock. Walls and ceiling were also damaged by smoke.

Members of the Keller family left their living quarters for a time until all danger of the blaze spreading was past. The heat broke two large display windows at the front of the building.

Sunday School Aids In Fifth War Loan Drive

At Zion Lutheran Sunday School, on Sunday, war bonds were presented to the church.

Charles Bigelow, Norfolk, Va. (L. S. M. training), presented a $100 bond from the classes; Eleanor Scheetz, a bond from Mrs. Schrenk's class; and Winifred Marguerum a bond from Mrs. Veigel's class. By the special offerings in each class every Sunday the school has purchased bonds in each drive.

FINDING OF WOMAN'S BODY IN RIVER CLIMAXES SERIES OF INCIDENTS WHICH ARE BELIEVED TO BE CIRCUMSTANTIAL

Body of Mrs. Marietta Yohn, 29, South Fork, Found Floating in Water below Mill St. Wharf—Had Previously Been Taken To Her Home by Police and Later Reported Safe in Telephone Call to Police Headquarters.

A series of incidents culminating in the finding of the body of a woman floating in the Delaware River on Monday afternoon has created a mystery which police are endeavoring to solve.

The body was identified as that of Marietta L. Yohn, 29, 112 Maple street, South Fork, Pa. The Bristol address of the victim is given as 254 Radcliffe street. According to Donald Glass, of the same Bristol address, who identified the body, Mrs. Yohn's husband is in the U. S. Army.

The body was seen floating in the water below the Mill street wharf at about 3.20 by a man and a woman in a boat. They called to William Jefferies, Garden street, who aided in bringing the corpse ashore and then notified police. Coroner J. Alfred Rigby was summoned.

Mrs. Yohn was fully clothed except for shoes and stockings. Police were told that she did not wear stockings but when last seen had on high heel shoes.

The body was taken to the Molden morgue. A certificate of accidental drowning was issued by Coroner Rigby, according to the police.

Mrs. Yohn wore a red and white figured dress and had a wrist watch on her right wrist. The watch had stopped at 12.30. She was reported to have had a necklace and a pocketbook when last seen alive. These have not been found, nor her shoes.

The woman was formerly an employee of the Rohm & Haas Company but left a few days ago and then is said to have gone to her home, returning here a few days ago and again taking up her residence at the Radcliffe street address about June 29th.

The woman's father's name is given as John W. McCloskey, of the same South Fork address, and her mother is said to be dead.

The circumstances leading up to the finding of the body and which has thrown a veil of mystery about the woman's death are these:

Saturday evening police apprehending Mrs. Yohn along Highway 13, south of Mill street, took her to her Bristol residence in the radio patrol car and instructed her to remain at home. They are of the opinion that she had been drinking.

RECEIVES 1ST HONORS IN CLASS AT TEMPLE

Herman Corn To Be Given Public Health Post

RECIPIENT OF PRIZES

Herman Corn, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Corn, 115 Mill street, graduated from Temple University Dental School, Philadelphia, on Friday. As a member of a class of 113, Dr. Corn received first honors, having highest average for the four scholastic years.

He attended school as a private first class in the army specialized training program. Originally, the graduating seniors were to receive commissions in the dental corps as first lieutenants, but with the present need of the army fulfilled no one was commissioned in such a capacity. The entire army personnel left July 1st for Fort Dix, N. J., where they will be honorably discharged from the army. They will become civilians but are required to make application to the navy for commissions.

Dr. Corn was chosen with nine others to be given commissions in the U. S. Public Health Service. He will receive the commission of lieutenant, junior grade, after he has

EXECUTION MOVIE

According to Pietro Caruso, former Fascist police chief of Rome and now a prisoner in Allied hands, Mussolini had a film made of the execution of his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, and other members of the Fascist Grand Council sentenced to death for alleged betrayal of Fascism. It appears that Ciano, Marshal Emilio de Bono and two others were shot to death from behind by their executioners.

Caruso's story goes that Ciano lost his nerve after his sentence and begged to be allowed to communicate with Hitler. The telegram was acknowledged with a curt reply to the effect that "Der Fuehrer has no concern in the matter." It is further asserted that Ciano had to be carried to the place of execution and, shrinking away from the first shot, was killed with a second bullet.

Both Mussolini's and Hitler's uncompromising attitude in the instance of Count Ciano's execution, however grimly it may strike the outside world, clearly is in keeping with the heartless and soulless tradition of Axis dictatorship. It is an attitude that has officially been impressed on the rank and file of master mob organization. Fascism is only a lingering political blight in Italy, but among the Nazis a steel-like cynicism still prevails.

The execution of Count Ciano under the personal direction of his father-in-law may be a preview of Axis things to come when the Nazis start turning on themselves in the realization that their cause is wholly lost.

STALIN ADMITS IT

That America has played an important role in helping Russia win victories is well known, but Americans have been so modest that they have thought first of the fact that if it were not for Russia's gallant fight against the Germans after the Reich invaded the Soviet Union, the Allies would have a difficult time defeating the Axis.

Premier Stalin is not unmindful of the part which this country played in enabling him to resist the Axis and even begin a drive toward Berlin, but no Americans have heard of his admitting it. In a statement given to Eric Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Stalin said:

"American business and American labor have done a remarkable job of production for the war. American agriculture also has performed unusually well. American machines of war and American food have contributed to the successes of the Red Army and its victories. The United States government has played a major role in the development and co-ordination of this production and also in fostering co-operation between our two countries."

American has known that for many months, but it is nice of the Russian dictator to put it in writing.

A famous tenor who flitted with the Axis is not permitted to sing for American and British troops in Rome, and this prohibition also applies to those who sing basso profundo, baritone or falsetto.

on appeal, the court, may use its discretion in granting or refusing a transfer. The Bucks county court held that it could refuse the transfer for adequate cause.

The court, having heard evidence for and against the transfer, refused to grant the transfer on the following grounds:

1. That the applicant had conducted the present restaurant in an illegal manner so as to constitute a public nuisance.

2. She did not conduct it honestly as a restaurant but as an "open saloon" in which the furnishing of food was a mere disguise of the real purpose.

3. That the present restaurant has been a menace to the welfare, peace and morals of the public.

4. That the transfer is objected to by reputable citizens on the north side of the tracks on the Judge Boyer also handed down an opinion in the case of Louise M. Ebe against Mabel L. Jones, both of Buckingham township.

The court filed the Chancellor's Adjudication in a suit in equity to enjoin the defendant from interfering with the plaintiff's driveway and easement across her land and to compel her to restore it to its original condition after she had destroyed it by plowing it up and cultivating it.

Judge Boyer, sitting as Chancellor, found in favor of the plaintiff and entered a decree enjoining and restraining the defendant as prayed for and directed her to restore the driveway to its original condition.

The Chancellor found that an easement by prescription existed on open and adverse use by the plaintiff and his predecessors for more than 21 years—to wit, a period of 60 or more years.

NORTH to DANGER by TOM GILL

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

For more than twenty years, Colin had grown up with Dr. Benedict—tales of braving blizzards and the hazards of retreating ice to bring hope and healing to some stricken village of the Grees, tales of exposure to the ravages of epidemics that swept across the land like the myth of death itself. All this, to Dr. Benedict, had been only professional routine.

Supremely forgetful of himself and of his worldly fortunes, he knew no difference between a sick half-breed and a Hendrik's Bay dignitary. To both he gave the same degree of care—his best. Small wonder that Indian children touched him as he passed, hoping by that simple contact to derive something of the quality that had made this big, gentle physician an object of veneration among their people.

And now Colin watched him as he held out his hand; the man was robust and vigorous as ever, and with the same great mane of grizzled hair. But it was in the eyes Colin first saw a change. They were no longer clear and untroubled. They had become watchful, as if behind them brooded some uneasy thought that was never far from consciousness.

But at sight of Rae, the doctor's voice resounded. "Colin, my boy! You're welcome as a June day! Blair told me you might come over." It was a voice that strove to be hearty, but the old ring had gone. He smiled down at Blair and with that smile Colin remembered the great bond of devotion between them.

Then almost at once the smile faded; he stood abstracted, his eyes fixed vacantly before him until, with an effort, he roused himself and drew on his coat. "Hate to hurry away like this," He picked up his medical case. "I'm due to give some inoculations down at the river."

He kissed Blair and patted her cheek. "Back in an hour or less, darling. Don't rush off, Colin." He walked with long strides down the path, and something familiar in that stalwart figure caught Colin's gaze;—then suddenly he knew. It was: Benedict had seen with Dave the night before.

Blair's voice brought him back. "He's worried, Colin."

"Do you suppose he's worried about your flying?"

"No. When he found out how much I loved it, he thought the plane. I didn't want to take it; I didn't see how he could afford it. Father said it would be useful in emergency cases."

Colin's eyes were still on the window. "But he really got it because he knew you wanted to fly."

"That's the way he's always been. That's why I can't bear to see him worried and afraid to tell me why. Colin, we've got to help him. He was always so fond of you; maybe he'll talk to you when you're alone with him."

"We can try."

The rest of the aerial man through the window made him ask, "What's Dave doing with that aerial?"

"He has a little radio set in his office."

"How little?"

She smiled. "Most of the time he can't get Winnipeg. But he always tunes in on the weather reports from God's Lake."

From behind the cabin the Indian child came running, a small wooden wagon in his hand. The axle had broken loose, and the boy held it up toward Colin.

"Busted," he announced accusingly.

Solemnly Colin surveyed the toy. "Get some wire, son. We'll fix it." And happily the boy scurried off. "How does your father get on with Dave?" Colin asked.

"Very well—outwardly."

"What do you mean by outwardly?"

"I mean—Dave gives Father absolute freedom in all medical questions. He always speaks very highly of Father's work."

"He should. Your father's reputation with the Grees must make him very valuable to Dave—what ever is going on," Colin turned toward her. "Tell me something, Dave said he chartered a plane from The Pas to Leamington."

"He told me that, too."

"I radioed The Pas from Selkirk's office this morning. They say no plane has been chartered there in nearly a month."

Incredulously Blair looked up. "That means—"

"He lied. But the important thing is that he did come in by plane. It's the only way he could. Now what I want to know is—what plane?"

She had no answer, and Colin went on. "Last night I thought I heard a plane going south. Is there any air line between Winnipeg and the bay?"

"None. Even when the Airways are running, they don't go north—only east to God's Lake." Then, with a sudden recollection, she added, "A trapper came down from the bay a month ago with an infected hand. He talked about hearing a plane, but he was never able to see it. He thought it was mine, and I thought he imagined it, but now—"

At the sound of running feet Colin looked up to see the Indian child racing toward him, the broken cart in one hand, and triumphantly waving a small coil of wire in the other. He dropped them both in Colin's lap, then stepped back expectantly.

"You fix," he commanded.

Still plunged in thought, Colin began to undo the wire. "A plane might mean they're smuggling furs into the States. That would account for Dave's being able to pay such good prices, but I can't imagine—"

Abruptly Colin stopped, his eyes fixed on the coil of steel wire; then, frowning, he turned to the Indian boy. "Where did you get this?" he demanded.

Frightened, the child took a step back, then motioned toward the buildings across the clearing.

Colin leaned over him. "I know. But where?"

"In the hall. Upstairs."

"Where upstairs?"

"Attie."

"Is there any more of this up there?" The boy shook his head, and Colin held out the coil toward Blair. "Recognize this?"

"It's wire, isn't it?"

"Snare wire—five-strand wire of solid steel. It's been forbidden in this country for years." He glared down at it. "This stuff has destroyed more fur animals than all the traps in the world. It's illegal even to have it."

With angry eyes, he looked at Blair. "Dave can't be mad enough to supply snare wire to his trappers. It would ruin him and his school both. And yet this boy finds a coil in the attic." Colin's voice quivered. "Is it up there your father and Dave spend so much time together?"

"Yes. Almost every night."

"Is that building part of the school?"

"Dave calls it 'the Hall.' They built it after the others, and Dave helped with the construction himself. His office is in there, and Father's hospital; that wing with the slanting roof is the chapel."

"Who lives there?"

"No one—except when the hospital is being used."

"What's upstairs?"

"Two empty rooms and an attic."

With mounting excitement Colin walked the length of the cabin, and at the window he stopped. No sign of life out there. No one in the playground or on the trail to the river. Now, if ever, was his chance, and Colin's eyes were shining when he turned again to Blair. "How soon will Dave be back?"

"In an hour—maybe less." She read his thought, and in quick protest shook her head. "Colin, you don't—"

"Yes, I do. I want to look over Mr. Dave's Hall."

"There's nothing to see."

"I'm not so sure."

"But if Dave comes back while you're there—"

"The longer we wait, the worse our chances are. Come on."
